Research Activities

Research Activities

The VIR Research Program, which I lead, fosters a collaborative environment dedicated to expanding medical knowledge and improving patient care. Our research focuses on a broad spectrum of medical conditions, encompassing both established and novel VIR procedures. We believe strongly in fostering collaboration, both within and across departments at NYULH, and prioritize research mentorship for our faculty, trainees, and medical students.

I am currently serving as the Principal Investigator for an investigator-initiated IDE study on genicular artery embolization (GAE) for knee osteoarthritis. Additionally, I lead the NYULH site and serve as a national co-investigator for the NIH-funded PE-TRACT Trial, a multicenter randomized controlled trial evaluating catheter-directed therapy (CDT) for pulmonary embolism. I also actively contribute to multiple prospective and retrospective studies examining venous thromboembolism, portal hypertension, and men's health interventions.

Clinical Activity

My passion for interventional radiology stems from the synergy between my clinical expertise and research interests. This seamless translation of knowledge into tangible patient care improvements fuels my dedication to the field. Specializing in men's health interventions like gonadal vein embolization, I identified a service gap and proactively collaborated with urology to expand our offerings. This drive to address unmet needs led me to initiate a trial on GAE for knee osteoarthritis, establishing a robust, and the first in New York, musculoskeletal embolization service line at NYULH. This continuous cycle of clinical practice informing research and research shaping practice exemplifies my commitment to advancing interventional radiology.

Education Activity

My passion for interventional radiology extends beyond clinical practice and research, encompassing a deep dedication to education. I actively foster a vibrant learning environment for medical students, residents, and fellows through both didactic and clinical instruction. At NYU Langone, I have played a key role in curriculum development and clinical education, contributing to the development and directorship of research electives for students, the establishment of monthly VIR research meetings, and daily procedural and clinical education for trainees. My commitment to interactive learning is evident in my participation in hands-on simulation workshops and lectures for residents, as well as didactic sessions for both Interventional Radiology (IR) and Diagnostic Radiology (DR) programs. I am also actively involved in research mentorship, guiding medical students and residents on QI projects, retrospective and prospective trials, and educational abstracts.

Furthermore, my commitment to education extends beyond the realm of medicine. I am currently pursuing a Master of Arts in Health Law and Policy, further expanding my knowledge and expertise. This newfound legal understanding will allow me to seamlessly integrate legal education programs into our trainee curriculum. In collaboration with experts in health law and policy, I plan to develop workshops, lectures, and case studies focused on the legal aspects of interventional radiology, fostering a deeper understanding of legal and ethical considerations within our field. This initiative will not only equip our trainees with invaluable knowledge, but also empower them to navigate the complexities of healthcare law with confidence and professionalism.

Teaching Activities

Diversity, Equity, Inclusion, and Accessibility

In addition to my clinical practice and research leadership, I am deeply committed to fostering diversity, equity, inclusion, and accessibility (DEIA) in healthcare. I have actively built diverse research teams, including coordinators and nurses, mentored colleagues and trainees from underrepresented groups. My research and clinical practice have focused on reducing health disparities and improving outcomes for underserved populations, particularly in the areas of pulmonary embolism and knee osteoarthritis.

I believe that equitable and inclusive healthcare delivery is essential for achieving optimal health outcomes for all individuals. My ongoing legal education in health law and policy has strengthened my understanding of systemic barriers to care and empowered me to advocate for equitable healthcare policies. I am passionate about continuous learning and growth in DEIA principles and practices, actively seeking opportunities to promote DEIA within the healthcare profession and beyond.
